Data Transfer Node (DTN)

1. DTN stands for ‘Data Transfer Node’.
2. It is a host that has been specifically created to support large scale data transfers from Internet data sites to user’s storage areas in the University Research Computing (URC) environment.

More Information: What is DTN?

Browse More FAQs

- What is DTN?
- How do I access the DTN?
- How do I transfer data from the Internet to my storage once I am logged into the DTN Node?
- What storage do I have access to via the DTN?
- How is DTN different from the URC interactive nodes at hpc.uncc.edu?