Educational Computer Clusters

The University Research Computing Group provides clusters of computers for use by students in their classes or for independent study projects. These systems are similar, but smaller versions of computer clusters used in academic or commercial research, development and decision support environments.